From: CA Economic Summit
To: Ohtaki, Peter I
Subject: [CA Economy Newsletter] WANTED: More CA homes & skilled workers
Date: Thursday, April 20, 2017 1:32:43 PM

A Roadmap to Shared Prosperity

News from the California Economic Summit | CAECONOMY.ORG

Dispatch from the Road to Shared Prosperity

In a letter to the Administration and Legislature, a diverse coalition makes the case that the current batch of housing legislation (more than 100 bills have been introduced thus far) still isn't doing enough to address the scale of California's housing affordability problem.

Earlier this year, a group of environmentalists, affordable housing and equity advocates, local planners, homebuilders, and business associations released the One Million Homes Framework, an "all of the above" strategy that outlines all of the policy changes needed to address California's housing shortage.

This year's legislation, the Summit letter argues, has not yet adopted this comprehensive approach.

READ MORE

NEW SERIES: The Summit has launched a new web series showcasing local housing policy innovations that are getting projects built — and making housing more affordable.

Take a look at the latest story on local groups coming together in San Diego:
Momentum building in San Diego as coalition pushes for workforce housing

---

The state's biggest economic engines around the state will benefit from $200 million in California Community College funding that will power regional workforce training and accountability programs.

Nearly 700 programs have been certified as part of the Strong Workforce Program that aims to address the middle-skills gap that employers and educators are saying holds back California's economy.

READ MORE

The Summit is tracking the programs and employers taking part in the Strong Workforce Program and will spotlight how it's improving the way California will fill its crucial workforce pipelines.

Read more Strong Workforce Program stories

THE SUMMIT NEEDS YOU!

If you'd like to get involved with the Summit or learn more about the state's largest network of civic, business, and public leaders dedicated to upward mobility, head to our Summit information page and sign up today!

Entrepreneurial high schoolers give their best business pitch in competition

Event instills students with skills to start up small businesses

VIDEO: Decline of upward mobility in California must be reversed

Whether or not California's next generations do better than their parents has a lot to do with these local factors

Community Colleges give breakdown where new workforce funds being spent

Data portal details how $200 million in career tech education funding are being distributed across California

San Luis Obispo's housing shortage is bad for our health

High cost of housing making it difficult to attract medical professionals and causing stress with health consequences, says hospital leader

JOIN THE CONVERSATION:

CALIFORNIA ECONOMIC SUMMIT | CAECONOMY.ORG | UNSUBSCRIBE | VIEW EMAIL IN YOUR BROWSER

A Project of